

WHAT ARE YOU PLANNING TO DO... WITH THE REST OF YOUR LIFE?

Most people spend 40 to 50 years in the workplace, but only about half are satisfied in the work they do. In which half will you be?

Creating a Purpose-Inspired CAREER GAME PLAN

will help you:

- Define your life's purpose
- Refine your life's direction
- Sort through your career options
- Create a career game plan of your own

Creating a Purpose-Inspired Career Game Plan will show you how to discover far more meaning and purpose in the workplace than most people ever experience.

In this, the second guidebook of the three-volume set, you'll discover why you have more value than you may think and more potential than you realize. You'll explore seven benefits of teaming up with God while catching a vibrant vision for an extraordinary quality of life. You'll also get a peek into the amazing future and eternal rewards God has planned for you. You'll...

- See how a young lady rose from obscurity to queen of a nation and was greatly used of God.
- Learn why one man risked his entire future when he left the highest level of government to enter the construction business. Then you'll see how he followed God's directions, made yet another career change, and became an important player in God's greater plan.
- Discover how you too can be a player in God's greater plan.

Then you'll get a chance to articulate the purposes that can inspire your own career game plan—purposes that can energize you for a lifetime.

Rick Pinkham has spent more than thirty years in the workplace as an employee and a business owner. His observations of workers, perceptions, attitudes, and behavior led him to explore why some people see their work as a great opportunity while others view it as a grueling grind. Consequently, he devoted several years to studying God's design for the world of work and learned how biblical truths can inspire God's fellow workers with a higher sense of purpose.
